EXPOSITION CROWDS TO SEE FUNNY MEN PLANT CHESTNUT TREE!!

CHESTNUT: A genus of plants allied to the beech. The common or Spanish chestnut is a stately tree with large, handsome serrated leaves. The fruit consists of two or more seeds enveloped in a prickly husk.

CHESTNUT: An old joke or wheeze.

Take your choice—either is correct. Anyhow, the world is not to languish for want of chestnuts after August 25, American Press Humorists Day at the Panama-Pacific International Exposition. For on that day, their day, the newspaper joke-writers of the United States are going to plant and dedicate to posterity an official chestnut tree.

This unique ceremony is to be the formal purpose of their holiday journey to San Francisco, their this year's outing, and is intended to make their thirteenth convention distinctive. As far as is known nobody has ever planted a chestnut tree for the benefit of the whole world before. But the humorists decided it was high time something were done, what with the visible supply of squirrel food becoming so depleted. The exposition landscape gardeners, John McLaren, the famous builder of Golden Gate Park, and his son Donald McLaren, have reserved a fine young tree for the plants. The site chosen is at the Press Building. But this is only temporary. The tree is to become a gift to San Francisco for a permanent place in one of its magnificent parks, where it can grow uninterrupted and perpetuate a liberal harvest of chestnuts both kinds.

The chestnut tree ceremony will be participated in by exposition officials and American Press. Humorists jointly, aided, abetted and approved by members of the local press club which has several humorist members. Ted Robinson of the Cleveland Plain Dealer, president, holds the West Pocket Express, holds Robinson's coat so that Secretary Fred Schaefer of San Francisco doesn't get it Schaefer in the meantime to hold Fitch so he doesn't leave with the coat. Sufficient dignity will be lent the affair by Roy K. Moulton of Grand Rapids, the Central Press humorist, who doesn't say much, but writes a lot.

"RAINY DAY" ADVICE OFFERED THE PEOPLE

By One Who Discusses Taxation, Roads, Automobiles and the Like.

(By W. M. Morris.)

When one looks over the unusually large delinquent list, as returned by the sheriff of our county for the non-payment of taxes for the year of 1914, we are made to wonder where the money is to come from to pay all the bills charged to us on the assessor's books.

Then, in the face of this shortage, we have to meet the twelve million dollars decreed against our state by the United States Supreme Court in the old Virginia debt case. That should cause our people to be a little cautious about the expenditure of their money for some time to come at least.

And—permit me to say here—it would be unwise at this time to bond our county for any large sum for road building, with all the pressure that may be brought to bear upon our county court to do so, by manufacturers and agents of automobiles.

And to such of our people who are permitting mortgages to be placed on their farms or their homes, to secure the money to buy an automobile, I would say that they had better consider well before taking such a step. Of course many purchasers have the ready cash to pay for their machine and can survive the proverbial "rainy day" that is sure to come in a not very distant day. I would also advise that a more drastic law against reckless driving of these machines, be enacted before the country people are burdened with taxes to build the roads for automobiles to the exclusion of all vehicles drawn by horses.

While we have some careful drivers of automobiles who manifest a regard for the rights or safety of those who claim a right to be upon the road, some owners of automobiles have complained to the writer that they have met other drivers of machines, coming at great speed, who persistently kept in the middle of the road until they have been almost forced over an embankment to avoid serious trouble. We should profit from the experience of our neighbors in Ohio who were made to believe that good roads and boulevards would greatly enhance the value of their farms. They got the roads all right; but the enormous taxes imposed for roads and school purposes had the effect of forcing many to sell their farms at greatly reduced rates and the prices of farms there are now at least 25 per cent lower than they were forty years ago. These are facts that are uncontroversial, and we should go slow in the matter of creating extra taxes.

CLAYPOLE DEPORTED.

Edward Claypole promised to leave the city when he was arraigned in police court Tuesday morning on a charge of vagrancy. He was dismissed with the warning that he would be rearrested if found in the city.

CONFERENCE OF AGENTS.

W. D. Zinn, Harrison county agricultural agent, will attend a conference of all the county agricultural agents of the state, which has been called for June 26 to 29 at Morgantown. The object of the conference is to exchange views, establish uniform principles and get together on a number of problems.

SHRINERS

Of West Virginia Will Make a Big Excursion to the Pacific Coast.

WHEELING, June 22—West Virginia Shriners are making preparations for the big excursion to the Pacific coast in time to have the party present for West Virginia Day at the exposition, July 31. At first it was intended to have a special West Virginia train, but this has been abandoned and special arrangements will be made to travel on the regular trains.

The route will be through the Yellowstone Park, where a stop of five days will be made; thence to Seattle, where four days will be passed, thence to Portland and down the coast through Shasta Springs to San Francisco; and after a week at the exposition, thence down to Los Angeles, San Diego and return home through Salt Lake City, Colorado Springs and Denver to San Francisco direct through Salt Lake City and Denver. A large contingent from Oris Temple, of this city, will make the trip, including William W. Irwin, representative for life and past imperial potentate.

COLORED MASONS

Of West Virginia Are Holding Their Annual Convention in the City of Wheeling.

WHEELING, June 22—Colored Masons from all over the state are in session here. The convention will last three days and during that time many matters of importance will be considered. Headquarters are located at 1029 Chapline street, but today's ritualistic services will be held at the Odd Fellow's hall with public services and the grand lodge session at the Wayman Methodist Episcopal church later.

Among the prominent colored Masons here for the convention are A. P. Straughter, of Hinton, grand master of Masons; Prof. E. L. Bard, of Keystone; and Mrs. Anna Howard, of Huntington, grand matron of the Eastern Star. While the grand Masons are in session the female members of the Eastern Star will also convene and elect officers and attend to business matters.

ical schools had been so thinned that a third of the schools were now hors du combat, and it was expedient to mark time for a while and give those institutions which have approached the firing line at a double-quick speed a chance to catch their breath."

Some Poor Teaching.

But the problem of secondary education for the medical man, he thought, was handicapped by too high a cultural standard. Although a course in biology, chemistry and physics was agreed upon as a prerequisite to the study of medicine, the subjects were not taught satisfactorily in the high schools and colleges generally.

"Therefore, for the present, at least, it must be taught largely by the medical schools, or there must be, as has been suggested by distinguished educators, a rearrangement of the curricula of high schools, so that they will embrace a course in the sciences which will be acceptable to the medical schools. This, we believe, is the very best solution of the problem."

FARIS RENAMED.

The Birthday Party Made Complete

NIMBLE are the minds of all youngsters. Their thoughts go a-wandering here, there and everywhere. At the birthday gathering the birthday cake may please them. So, too, the fruit and all the other goodies you have provided. But, none of these holds the attention of the children as does Ice Cream—the Cream that created a never-satisfied craving for richness, sweetness and purity.

Would the birthday party be complete for your kiddies without this wholesome, delicious favorite? Better remember to include it next time. But, insist—for their sakes—that it's
